1. INTRODUCTION

Your name is Frederick and you're a formidable swordsman who grew up improving his combat skills with your father in your leisure time. You became a king's knight who trusted you to protect your kingdom named Naydia. The king's son, Arthur, was jealous about your sword skills, and he tried so hard to put his father against you, making him believe you were a thief whose intentions were to steal valuable relics from the king's chambers. He eventually achieved that, and he exiled you to the furthest village of the kingdom, where you started a new life as a barman.

One day, expecting not too much of your workday, something would change everything. You wake up early in the morning and you sight a party of demons charging towards your village. You don't know what to do, when suddenly you remember you saved your knight's armour and sword since you moved here, and you see this as a perfect chance to unleash your rage.
